Developing countries are experiencing a youth surge with the number of adolescents and young people at an all-time high. If adolescent girls' human rights are upheld, and if given the tools and $z\{\{z\}\in y \text{ sin} \text{ for } v \text{ when } \{z \text{ for } v \text{ fo$

Unlocking the potential of a generation of adolescent girls will be essential to achieve the ambitious 2030 Agenda, contributing to peace, prosperity and equality. When empowered with the knowledge, skills, social networks, opportunities and services to succeed in life, and make informed choices, adolescent girls tend to marry later, bear children later, and have better health and economic outcomes for themselves leading to stronger, inclusive and more prosperous countries.

The G7 Ministers responsible for humanitarian action and development assistance will:

- Adopt integrated approaches to our support for adolescent girls, including in humanitarian,
